Welcome Email Template

Before You Start

This is the first email your subscribers will receive and sets the tone with every email that comes afterwards. It is also the highest opened email you will send, they're curious about you and your business, so take the opportunity to begin building rapport and a relationship with your subscribers.
Below is a template for the first one. Use the parts you want, leave the rest.
You might also find that you get inspiration for content you want to add to future emails. Start a file for future content and topics to refer back to.

The Template

Subject line Options

- Welcome - You're in
- Hello from [your name/business]
- You just made a good decision
- Nice to meet you
- Here's your freebie [freebie name]

The Email

Hi [first name],
You're in. Welcome.

I'm [your name], I [what you do in a sentence]

OPTION A - Your [freebie name] is attached to this email [or you can put a downloadable link here]

OPTION B - I'm glad you're here. You'll here from me [how often] with [what kind of content]

While you're here, here is what to expect from me and my emails:

- [type of content]
- [how often]
- [one thing they won't get]

If you want to work together, I offer [main serivce]. You can see what's available and book here: [booking link]
And if you want to say hi - hit reply, I read every email.

Talk soon,
[your name]
[your business]
[social media/website]

Tips

- Keep it short. 3-4 short paragraphs, keep the depth for future emails.
- Set the expectation. Let people know how often they will hear from you
- Deliever what you promised. If they signed up for something specific, make sure it's accessible.
- One soft call to action (CTA). Don't ask to follow, book and share all in one email.
- Send it to yourself first. Check the links, any attachments, and reads correctly.