

Your Inner World

Listen to how you talk to yourself

Not the edited version. The real one - the voice that shows up when something goes wrongs, when you look in the mirror, when you make a mistake

Would you let a friend speak to themselves that way?

If the answer is no - keep going.

Whose voice is it?

This voice was not born with you. It was learned. Sit with this question - does it sound like you, or does it sound like someone else

IT'S MINE

Where is this voice from?

What were you going through?
How old did you feel?

NOT SURE

What age does it feel?

This often points back to your inner child. Take notice

SOMEONE ELSE

Who does is sound like?

Parent? Teacher?
Relationship? Name them

Does this voice need to be released, understood, or made friends with?

Some inner voices are asking to be heard - not obeyed. Some need to be shown the door.
You get to decide which

Give it a name if it helps - a personality

Separating from the voice makes it easier to see it clearly. It is not you. It is something you have been carrying

Separation

You are not the voice. You are the one noticing it. That distance - however small - is where your power lives. You do not have to keep carrying what was never yours to begin with