Content Pillar Ideas

Your Product

What it is + does - What does someone actually get when the buy this? What does it change, solve, or add to their life? Keep it simple.

How to use it - Usage content reduces the gap between "I'm interested" and "I'll buy it". Show how it fits into a real life, not an inspirational one. This is content you can always post + repost.

What makes it different - Not just "better than the competition". Focus on yours. The material, the method, the intention behind it. Specificity builds trust faster than claims.

How its made

Behind the scenes - What does it take to make this? The steps, the time, the decisions along the way. Most customers have no idea, so show them.

What goes into it - Ingredients, materials, sourcing, suppliers. The inputs that make your product what it is. This is especially powerful when you make considered choices.

The decisions others don't see - The invisible quality choices. Things customers wouldn't consider unless you tell them. This helps build trust and distinguish a maker from a seller.

You

Why you started making this - Your origin story. The gap you saw, the need you felt, the moment you decided to make something instead of waiting for someone else to do it.

Running it solo - The honest, unglamourous truth of doing everything yourself. This content normalises the reality of solo business and builds community of people who get it.

What it means to you - Not in a performed way. Why this product, why this work, why you keep going on the hard days/week/months. Only what you mean.

The Customer

Who buys this + why - Use words that your customers use. Where are they in life, what are they looking for, what do they feel when they find your product.

What changes after they buy it - What changes in someones life, routine, or how they feel once they have this product. Not a testimonial pitch, just an honest pitch.

Who it isn't for - Saying who the product isn't for is one of the most trusted things you can do. It signals confidence and filters out the wrong buyers.

Education, Context + Launches

What I know about (product) that most people don't - Share your knowledge behind your product - ingredients, materials, methods, the industry.

Costings and pricing - Be honest on what things cost, what goes into your prices and what it means to value your work properly.

What's coming - The build-up for new products, seasonal editions, restocks, changes you're making. Sharing the process before launch builds anticipation and interest.
